Climate, Soil, Country Determine Character of People.

BOOK LEARNING NOT THE END

Development of the Soul Should Be Teacher's Aim—Mrs. Parker Talks of Delsarte.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Col. Parker's lecture yesterday was more an eloquent sermon on the development of the human soul than a dissertation on pedagogics, a sermon applicable to the home, to every parent as well as to every teacher. The whole theme of the work of these eminent Chicago educators now at the Summer School has been "Nor soul helps body more, nor body soul." Their plea has been to study the child and lead him through nature to a higher development of the soul. This is the end of education.

Yesterday the subject was a continuation of the study of geography. Environment, Col. Parker said, is the determining cause in the development of civilization. The geographical peculiarities of a country are responsible for the condition of its inhabitants. The climate, the soil, the country determine the character of the people. All mankind has been and is closely bound by environment.

The primitive man was more in touch with nature than the modern. The more a man grows, the more dependent he is upon nature, but people generally do not recognize this fact. Col. Parker said that in this country a man should become better for living so close to nature. Heretofore men have been taking only a small portion of nature. Botany, geography, geology, mineralogy, zoology, anthropology, all these subjects have been studied under their specific titles and have made them distinct branches of knowledge. But through them and in them is the Creator, is nature, and the man who sees them is developing his soul, which is education.

When the teacher speaks of these subjects to the child he speaks of something of which the child is full. But the different methods of teaching have separated these subjects, have kept them apart from nature. They have been methods to cut off the naturalness of the child, to hedge him about with a nomenclature of sciences. These subjects are rooted in divine instincts, they manifest themselves spontaneously. The teacher who separates them from nature has not the knowledge that the regeneration of the world and spiritual growth come from the everlasting Sunday School.

Col. Parker said he could not express the infinite pleasure he took in seeing the children of his school growing in grace and the desire to do, to be useful, in having the parents of these children tell him that their homes were brighter, better, sweeter, because of the development of the child in school. He looks upon these children as young citizens who some day are to assume the responsibilities of business men, of politicians, men who some day are to control the affairs of the country.

Mrs. Parker talked of Delsarte and this much misunderstood and badly taught art. The higher the art, she said, the better training is required to teach it. Delsarte's method has been badly taught in the United States and for this reason many people have failed to realize what value it is. Mrs. Parker then gave a brief biographical sketch of the life of Delsarte.

Mrs. Parker said that there are three features of Delsarte's system. They are a preparation of the body to take out old habits; movements that will bring in new habits and coordinate muscular action; the study of gesture. She spoke of the difficulty of walking easily and gracefully, because of the absence of coordination of the muscles of the whole body. She told of the evils of stunts and high heeled boots and asked how it is possible to expect a woman to walk gracefully and with perfect freedom, to have control of her body when the side and hip muscles are bound down and made useless.

Mrs. Parker said that the exercise known as decomposing is to break the old habits of action. People are full of these habits. Decomposition exercises teach economy of energy. Awkwardness means waste of energy. The great plan for grace of body is for the sake of economy. Absurd dressing and an ignoring of natural laws of the body are responsible for much lack of grace and equisole. She illustrated with many gestures showing the movements which run through the whole body. She said that most people lose sight of the significance of use of the body. Delsarte has many mechanical signs. So that primitive people and all people who have limited vocabularies. The gesture which says something more than words is more valuable than mere descriptive gesture. The language of gesture is common to all countries.

Gesture is not confined to the head and hands. Every part of the body plays its part. We study people's features closely. We study everything else but the human soul. A close study of the soul will make one more just, more charitable.

HIS LAST SUNDAY

Ending of Pastorate Here of the Rev. D. P. Birnie.

Large Congregations for Final Sermons—Texts and Lessons—Data of Central Union Church.

The Rev. D. P. Birnie had very large morning and evening congregations for his last Sunday at Central Union church. Rev. Mr. Birnie, Mrs. Birnie and daughter will leave for the States by the Coptic. Those who attended Central Union services yesterday included about all of the parishoners in the city, many other residents of Honolulu and quite a number of men off the United States troop ships now in port. There was a good representation of Hawaiians, Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese in the large auditorium both forenoon and evening. This brief statement of the service of Rev. Mr. Birnie here was printed on the calendar.

"The present pastorate began Sunday, March 17th, '95, and closes today, July 26th, '98. During this time there have been received into the Church 150 new members; 101 on confession, 58 by letter. The pastor has officiated at 52 funerals, 75 baptisms, 42 marriages. During the year he has called at least once on each of the 42 families now connected with the Parish."

This but feebly and indefinitely gives an indication of what Rev. Mr. Birnie has done in this community. By his kindly demeanor and his sympathetic interest in the religious and social well being of all he has been a true and useful friend to hundreds outside his church organization. Especially has he been a force in behalf of the young men of Honolulu, throwing open his own home to them and interesting himself in the individuals as well as in the club of young men organized under his roof. In this work, as in all other labor for good, Rev. Mr. Birnie has had the able and effective co-operation of Mrs. Birnie. Rev. Mr. Birnie came here at a time when the local life had been greatly disturbed and there was much confusion and uncertainty. He has been very faithful.

The two sermons by Rev. Mr. Birnie yesterday were quite characteristic of the man. His actual words of farewell were few. The lessons of his discourses were strong and clear. In the morning the text was: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel, which is the power of God unto Salvation, to everyone that believeth." The pastor gave his conception of the Gospel as the power of God more than the path or the way. It is the energy, the vitality, the strength of the power of the Almighty. Salvation means a redeemed, a better, a fairer, a truer life everywhere. Its only limitation in acceptance is the will of the individual.

In the evening the text was: "For I am determined to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." The Rev. Mr. Birnie said it was scarcely the business of a minister to preach "Don'ts." It was rather to have and to endeavor to enable others to have personal acquaintance with the Lord Jesus Christ. It is a loss of time and opportunity to discuss details of conduct or counsel, which is the power of God unto Salvation, to everyone that believeth. The speaker was very earnest and was given the closest attention.

The pastor expressed the deepest gratitude to those who had been so kind to himself and family during their stay here and mentioned particularly the Hawaiians, Portuguese, Japanese and Chinese. "Rev. Mr. Birnie will continue in his life work, but will not accept any of several offers till he goes to the fields opened and makes inspection. The family will reach the east early in the fall. Mr. Birnie will first have a vacation, as he is not in the best of health."

There was special music for both services yesterday and the pulpit was decorated with flowers.

PROF. CRAWLEY'S LECTURE.

Interesting Talk to Teachers on Soil and Fertilizers.

Prof. J. T. Crawley continued his lecture before the Summer School last night on the subject of the "Chemistry of Hawaiian Soils." He described the properties that make them up in various parts of the group, the proportions and the fertilization required in the various cases.

It was shown with respect to Kaula that the island suffered unusual impoverishment from the flowing water. An actual estimated figures the amount was very great, indeed. Oahu, Maui and Hawaii did not suffer so much.

From this point the speaker went into the subject of fertilizers and the amounts required under various conditions. The lecture was eminently practical and was appreciated by all present.

THEY CELEBRATE

Annexation News Makes Maui People Happy.

Lulus and Flag Raising—More Fire Works Tonight—More Than a Thousand Dollars Raised.

(Special Correspondence.)

MAUI, July 25.—Thursday, the 25th, was a general holiday in Makawao district and the annexation of Hawaii to the United States was celebrated in grand style by Pala and Hamakua people. Manager D. C. Lindsay of Pala and Manager H. A. Baldwin of Hamakua extended a general invitation to elaborate spreads on their respective plantations. Seven hundred people attended a magnificent luncheon at Pala, which took place about 12:30 p. m., on the grounds of the manager's residence. The guests were seated under a large lanai decorated with greens and bunting.

At noon in Hamakua people will over 1,000 persons of different nationalities sat down to a finely ordered Hawaiian feast. The presence of a large number of natives from Paahi was noted.

A beautiful 16-foot American flag floating from the lofty chimney of the mill was the most prominent piece of decoration. In the evening there was an attractive display of fireworks at the mill, the Sprackelsville brass band discoursing music between times. Later the band gave a concert at the residence of Manager Harry A. Baldwin, where a reception was held. Ice cream and cake were served.

On Monday, the 25th, Wailuku and Sprackelsville combined to have a grand celebration in Wailuku. Lao valley was first thought of as the scene of the grand banquet, but finally a huge lanai was erected on the grounds near the native church, where one of the largest and best Hawaiian feasts in the history of Maui will be served. In the evening a ball will be given in the Wailuku Court House. Over $1,000 was raised by subscription for the celebration. All the residents of foreigners and many prominent natives in Wailuku, Kahului and Sprackelsville are profusely decorated.

Hana and Lahaina people will delay their celebration until after the flag raising in Honolulu.

Judge Kahua, of Wailuku, is presiding at Hilo District Court during the illness of Judge Hitchcock.

Miss Crozier, of Honolulu, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell, of Pala.

Miss Schweizer, of Hilo, departed for Hilo by last night's Kilauea.

The weather is warm and dry.

WAS HERE IN '53.

Visits Honolulu After Absence of Forty-Five Years.

Wm. George, a man connected with the educational development of Chicago, is at the Arlington hotel. He is an interesting visitor for the reason that he was in Honolulu in 1853 and has a rich fund of reminiscences of the city and people. It was when Kamehameha III was negotiating for the annexation of the Islands to the United States that Mr. George was here and he recalls vividly the incidents of that period.

"Save for a few historic old landmarks I would never believe this beautiful, flourishing city to be Honolulu at all," said Mr. George. "In 1853 the King street Arlington house was occupied as a private residence. It is about the only building in the neighborhood that stood in those days. The old Custom house building was at the foot of Nuanu street and some others in that locality I remember."

"There are other traces of the old town, but the improvements of the years and the bustle of today almost hide them. It is an awakening from a dream into something far better to visit Honolulu after so many years."

The Wheat Corner

At Chicago has collapsed, and prices of flour have declined a very small fraction. The extreme high price for wheat was purely fictitious, and flour prices did not follow it. The legitimate price of wheat is high this year from natural causes.
